Adam Lusthaus' approach to the practice of law is simple. He begins by consulting with his clients and helping them define their overall personal and financial objectives. This results in a customized legal plan that the clients understand, which takes into account specific life circumstances, personal and business assets, tax implications and personal ambitions. Throughout the process, Adam strives to implement a plan that provides a cost efficient way for his clients to achieve their goals.

Adam believes that coordinating the effort of other attorneys, CPAs and financial advisors is the most effective way to create solutions to his clients' needs. With Adam's services, clients and fellow professionals are always receiving high-end experienced advice no matter how simple or complex their issues may be.

Adam assists his clients with a variety of planning services including:

- Wills
- Revocable trusts
- Durable powers of attorney
- Healthcare powers of attorney and living wills
- Asset protection
- Minor's and gift trusts (including life insurance trusts)
- Formation of limited partnerships and limited liability companies
- Businesses succession planning

Adam can also provide legal assistance with issues related to:

- Probate and trust administration
- Federal and state tax matters
- Real estate transactions
- Family law
- Personal Injury

Adam Lusthaus graduated from Dartmouth College in 2003 and went on to receive his law degree from Georgetown University Law Center in 2006, where he served as an editor of the American Criminal Law Review. After working at a large law firm for several years, Adam returned to school and earned his Master of Laws (LL.M) in Estate Planning from the University of Miami School of Law. Adam is admitted to practice in both Florida and New York, as well the U.S. Tax Court. Adam lives in South Florida with his wife and two children.
